150 residents turn out for Community Conference '97

To plan for projects that will help shape the area's future

It began with ideas like holding a mid-winter Mollycodd Day and taking over the Bethel Station project.

It finished with the formation of groups that will try to turn some of the ideas into realities.

"Community Conference '97" drew a crowd of about 150 people — representing all the SAD44 towns — to the Bethel Inn Conference Center Friday. The event lasted all day.

It was the third such gathering in 10 years. Previous conferences took place in 1987 and 1991, and spawned community organizations including the Mahosuc Arts Council and the Bethel Conservation Commission.

Cathy Newell, one of the organizers of the conference, said many people who took part in Friday's event told her they had a good time and felt it was productive.

"It produced a burst of energy and a way for people to connect," she said.

Early in the day, the conference-goers were asked to describe "an excitement or passion" they might have for a project in the Bethel area.

Among the responses: find a way to take over the Bethel Station project and turn it into something viable for the community; establish a permanent Bethel-to-Boston passenger train, with stops along the way; complete the planned bike path across the Androscoggin; offer SAD44 students a wilderness experience to bring them closer together; hold a mid-winter Mollycodd Day; set up an educational program to support gay youth and promote tolerance of them; prevent high-stakes bingo from taking over the community; help the poor of Oxford County.

Project plans

By the end of the conference, eight groups had forged tentative action plans for several "doable" projects, and set dates to gather again.

Among the projects: create an organization, possibly a growth council, to attract new business to the area; expand the District

MEETING OF THE AGES
Teenagers and senior citizens were well-represented at Friday's "Community Conference '97," held at the Bethel Inn. Not surprisingly, two projects focused on the young and the retired came out of the conference -- a community center for all ages and a graduated-care facility for seniors. LURC votes today on Passamaquoddy's plan

By MICHAEL DANIELS

"It's going to take over gradually, until Bethel becomes the town where the casino is," Jeff Rosenblatt told the town selectmen Monday evening, in a last-minute appeal for support at -- and beyond -- today's LURC hearing in Rockland.

At the hearing, the LURC commissioners are scheduled to take up the proposal from the Passamaquoddy Indian Tribe for a 2,000-seat, high-stakes Bingo Hall in Albany Township.

Rosenblatt, an Albany attorney who has been leading opposition to the proposal, sketched out for the selectmen what he sees in store for the area if the plan is approved (which is the recommendation of the LURC staff).

The legislative wheels are already turning, he argued, for the eventual construction of a full-scale casino.

"The history of Indian gaming in this state is characterized by the persistence of the tribe and its continuing success in expanding the scope of its permitted gambling activities," Rosenblatt had written in a letter last week to ranking members of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee.

That committee is currently considering a bill that would allow the Passamaquoddy to add more land to the 18.3 acres of Albany land currently designated as Indian Trust land.

If the bill passes and the additional land -- 50 acres the tribe already owns and at least one other parcel on which it holds an option -- is eventually put into trust, it would be more than enough to support an expanded bingo operation or even a full-blown casino.

Another bill, one that would have

Sunday River ordered to pay skier's widow $600,000

By MICHAEL DANIELS

An Oxford County Superior Court judge last week signed an order awarding $600,000 to a Massachusetts woman whose husband was fatally injured in a fall at Sunday River Ski Resort in 1993.

Justice Thomas Delahanty's action on Wednesday followed a 7-1 jury finding last week that the Newry resort had been negligent in not properly marking a hazard on the expert White Heat trail.

Andrew Hansen, a 48-year-old dentist from Swampscott, Mass., had been skiing with six others from his hometown Rotary Club

Rite Aid offers to donate excess SSDC credits for use by new daycare businesses

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The developer of the new Rite Aid store currently under construction on Route 2 has offered to donate the site's excess Sewer-System-Development-Charge credits to the town to be used for local daycare businesses.

Town selectmen have taken the proposal under consideration. Board members expressed enthusiasm Monday for this particular arrangement, but they also worried about the precedent it might be setting, especially in light of the absence of a formal policy for dealing with such situations.

The SSDC is assessed to new residences and businesses hooking up to the town sewer system. Based on such factors as number of bedrooms, employees, restaurant seats or meals served, it is intended to help underwrite the future upgrading or expansion of the sewer plant.

Unneeded credits from former trailer park could serve three new daycares

But for residents hoping to develop small businesses or add apartments to their residence, the SSDC has proven to be a significant financial hurdle.

This has been especially evident in the case of daycare businesses. The projected charges for two pending daycare projects range from $700 to well over $1,000.

A third daycare proposal was recently abandoned because of the SSDC, according to town Planning Assistant Nancy Schlieper.

Most people appear to agree there are not enough daycare openings in town, so the selectmen recently attempted to lower the SSDC hurdle by calculating the charge for daycare businesses in a different manner than for other businesses.

The town attorney, however, quickly advised against such an approach.

But for the new Rite Aid store, the SSDC was no problem. The store site was formerly a trailer park, whose seven trailers (now gone) had a total of 1260 gallons per day in "grandfathered" usage -- or 385 gpd more than the 875 required for the new building.

Would Newry TV viewers trade their dishes for cables?

By ALISON ALOISIO

Do satellite-using Newry residents want to switch to cable TV?

Town officials think many do. They plan to find out just how many by circulating a petition requesting cable service for the areas of town currently without cable. Other residents who have neither satellite nor cable hookup will also be asked if they would like to sign.

The town is negotiating the renewal of its cable franchise with FrontierVision of Rockland. The only homes in Newry that now receive service are the ones along the route to Sunday River Ski Resort. That leaves everyone else with satellite TV as the only option.

Selectmen had hoped to negotiate service for the rest of town as well. They have argued that FrontierVision makes a good profit from the clustered customers at the skiway's condominiums, and the company can therefore afford to run the cable to the more sparsely populated parts of town.

But in a recent letter accompanying a draft proposal for the renewal agreement, Brian Gasser, FrontierVision's regional manager, wrote: "I realize that your greatest concern is providing cable service to more areas of the town, particularly Bear River Road. The difficult part of agreeing to do so is the amount of cable plant to be built, the low number of potential subscribers, the penetration of satellite dishes in the area, and the overall cost of the extension."

The extension of Bear River Road would be at a cost of nearly $240,000. With only 86 residents in that area, and one-third of them already receiving service via satellite dishes, the extension becomes a poor business decision. The unfortunate result of building to low home densities is that all subscribers within the community end up with increased rates to pay for the extension.

"Although I am reluctant to close the door on Bear River Road, I am of town."

'TAME' DOE SHOT
A doe that had lost her fear of humans -- to the point that she would let herself be petted, stick her head into car windows, even come into homes -- was shot by a hunter on Veterans Day. For the past two years the doe had frequented the area near a burned-out farm cellar on the Richardson Hollow Road in South Greenwood. "This doe was a friend to many and brought much joy to the neighborhood," said one resident. "Motorists passing through would stop to pet her and take pictures." On the day the doe was shot, residents said, she was wearing a bandana tied on by one of her two-footed neighbors in order to alert hunters to the fact that she was semi-tame. The hunter who shot the deer, they said, was a teenager who lives only a few miles away.

IT'S NOT A 'JUDGMENT CALL'

To the Editor:

In recommending approval of the Passamaquoddy Tribe's proposed rezoning request, LURC's staff seems blinded by the tribal leader's argument that the gaming profits from the proposed facility would solve the tribe's current financial and unemployment problems. It seems useless to respond to the staff's recommendation on a point-by-point basis because the staff position is really based on emotional and political considerations, not the usual land use standards.

Long before the public hearing, it appeared that if the basic environmental requirements were satisfied, the staff would find a way around the other rezoning criteria. The staff's Aug. 1, 1997, pre-hearing memorandum supported this position. That pre-hearing memorandum was theoretically "neutral," but set forth an unprecedented "broadening" of the applicable legal principles that would permit a decision in favor of the tribe. The staff is now set for the commissioners to make what the staff itself describes as a "judgment call" -- as if there really were facts and law to support a decision for either position.

If one were to take this case out of its land use law context and ask simply: is it fair to help the needy Passamaquoddy Tribe even if doing so requires sacrificing Albany Township forever? -- you would have a judgment call. But there is a legal framework for making this decision and it is based on land use laws.

The staff's recommendation is not based on the weight of the evidence or on the commission's rezoning law and its guidelines. It is an attempt to legislate the staff's social justice "judgment call" in the guise of LURC's rezoning law.

AFTER SCHOOL MEETING

To the Editor:

The Intergenerational Activity Program Committee placed a press release in the newspaper last week regarding their efforts to form and coordinate an After School Program at Crescent Park School. There was an open invitation to attend their next meeting, which is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 20. The time was advertised as 7:30 a.m., but it has been changed to 5 p.m., to be held at Telstar High School in the lecture hall. The time was changed in order to accommodate and include the Telstar staff and students who might like to attend.

This committee, which originally formed as a result of the chamber's Community Leaders' Forum held in the spring, has been strengthened and affirmed by a larger group organized at last Friday's Community Conference 97. It is our goal to eventually see a comprehensive, sustainable and well-coordinated recreation and activity program delivering services to all ages in the SAD44 area. There was a tremendous amount of energy and enthusiasm to accomplish this coming from a large and diverse group at the conference.

This Thursday's meeting is open to all. We are hoping to find a core group of very committed individuals that will be willing to move this effort forward. We look forward to seeing you at 5 p.m. at the Telstar High School lecture hall.

CARTER ECO-LOGGING

To the Editor:

It seems to me that many people won as a result of the vote on the Maine forestry referendum issue, or the Compact vote. The Greens who have been most critical of the forest management of large landowners have the voluntary agreement to comply with its basic terms signed by the state's 15 largest landowners. Small landowners aren't going to be hit (for now) with another layer of burdensome regulations and Jonathan Carter appears to have gotten another boost in his quest for his unfinished agenda.

Mr. Carter is now in the best position to make a meaningful difference in how our forests are to be managed. He can do this by setting an example and getting into the logging business himself. Certainly anyone who has been so critical of logging knows just how to do it. Think about it. Every land trust, every government organization, and every landowner who happens to be wealthy would be at the Jonathan Carter Eco-Logging and Bio-Land Management Company's doorstep to get their forestry work done, and because they would know the logging would be done "right," they would be willing to discount stumpage fees. Unlike anybody else getting into the logging business, Carter Eco-Logging should have no trouble getting a foundation grant for seed money. There is no doubt in my mind that Carter Eco-Logging would in no time give established logger H.C. Haynes a run for his money. Mr. Carter would be doing much to help wildlife and to improve the environment and his experience would put him in a better position to recommend meaningful regulations.

We need to remember what the goal is. It is to better the environment, not to punish people who own and use land or to have a forest that looks like it did in the time period after the glaciers receded and before native Americans did their intensive forest management. Nor is it about wealth distribution or changing our government to one that owns everything and regulates everything in minute detail. Above all, our goal in forest management needs to be based on scientific facts, not unsubstantiated theories or politics, even when the appearance resulting from good forest management might not be perfect.

ORGANIZING AGAINST AIDS--A committee of Telstar High School students is planning a ball to raise money for an AIDS shelter in Portland. The Peabody House will get the proceeds from the event, to be held Nov. 22 at the Summit Hotel at Sunday River Ski Resort. The ball grew out of the earlier work of a Teen HIV Awareness Team, formed last year under the guidance of the University of Maine Extension Service. At that time, the students helped organize an AIDS education program for middle school students. The group began planning for the ball during the summer. Students from all area high schools are being invited to attend. The cost is $8 per person, or $14 a couple. Members of the committee are: Brandy Poland, Mandy Berry, Mary Ann Lowe, Malinda Gilbert, Stacy Bachelder, Amber Bachelder, Naomi Young, Heather Borst, Toni Vacca, Erin Riley, Angie Buker, Casey Brown, Shawna Roderick, Erin Osgood, Christine Richardson, Wendy Walker, Angie Buker.

AN EMOTIONAL ROLLER COASTER

To the Editor:

This past July 27 I was told I have "non-Hodgkin's lymphoma," a cancer of the lymph system. Mine happened to show up in the form of swelling on the left side of my neck, just below the jaw. I am writing in the hope of stimulating anyone with an unexplained lump or swelling to get it checked out immediately; I also hope to dispel some of the fears and misconceptions concerning cancer treatment. Understand, too, that the treatments I received are not used for all types of cancers, and some cancers do not respond to any treatments now used.

Dr. Miller, my family physician, specializing in internal medicines, took one look at the swelling on my neck, suspected the worst, and immediately sent me to the St. Mary's radiology clinic for a cat scan of the neck and chest. The cat scan confirmed the presence of tumors in the lymph nodes on the left side of my neck. A biopsy determined them as non-Hodgkin's lymphoma. Dr. Miller said something to the effect that this was "one of the bad kinds of lymphoma," and set me up with an appointment with Dr. Black, an oncologist (cancer specialist) for the following Monday.

I spent the weekend on an emotional low point, with the visions of my own death in a year or two. I tried to convince myself that I wasn't afraid of death, but rather not wanting to leave too many projects and dreams unfinished. Monday, when I saw Dr. Black, he said, "The cancer you have is a very aggressive type." (At this, my heart sank, as I interpreted "aggressive" as meaning, "fast growing.") "But," he continued, "the good news is that it responds to chemotherapy." Now, my spirits soared. "I'm going to live!"

The dreaded chemotherapy treatments began within a few days of my first meeting with Dr. Black. Happily for me, these treatments were not as unpleasant as I feared, and I slept through a good portion of my three-hour sessions while the various drugs dripped through my I.V. needle into my forearm. I was a little light headed after each dose of chemo, but I didn't really get sick. I got a little more tired and listless, after each treatment, and the strength left my legs, with the lower legs feeling nearly exhausted much of the time.

There were a few days when I suffered heartburn, irregular bowels, and a persistent knot in my stomach. I attributed to the oral medication I was given following each chemo session. All these symptoms began to raise doubts about my body's ability to cope and to recover; I wondered if I would ever regain my pre-treatment energy and strength.

Finally, the chemotherapy phase was over, my third and final treatment coming just over four weeks ago. Now, I had five weeks of radiation therapy to look forward to and I was already weak from the chemo. I was also a little apprehensive about radiation, with everything I've heard about the long-term effects of exposure to those "sinister X-rays."

When I went for my pre-treatment setup, I felt like one of the people in the "Star Trek" T.V. movies, where people stand in the magic machine and get "beamed up." There I was required to lie on my back on a narrow gurney, with a very hard surface, while they wheeled me under the "simulator," an overhead x-ray machine head. The simulator emitted a rectangular shaped white light and several narrow red laser light beams. Using these various lights and calculations previously provided by the radiologist, Dr. Mandell, the technicians carefully aligned my neck and left shoulder to the correct position. They made indelible tattoo dots, which would be used to align the actual radiation machine for my treatments.

Finally, two weeks after my final chemotherapy treatment, I went to the radiology clinic for my first radiation treatment. There was that hard, narrow gurney with a clear Plexiglas window where my neck would be, and a clear molded plastic "pillow" for my head. The technicians had me lie on the gurney on my back, and they wheeled me under the head of the x-ray machine, while electric motors hummed, and I felt the gurney rising under me. The overhead room lights went out, and the white light in the x-ray machine came on, illuminating my neck and left shoulder. Then came laser beams emanating from the walls on two sides of the room, making red lines that intersected across my shoulder and neck. With practiced efficiency, the two lady technicians (awfully young, I thought) pushed me a little here, pulled the sheet under me a little there, tweaked my chin up just a bit, until every part of me was perfectly positioned. Then they slid two screens across the front of the x-ray machine to block and attenuate parts of the x-ray beam so that every part of the "target area" would receive precisely the correct dosage of x-rays. Then they said, "don't move; we'll be right back," as they hurried out of the room and into the control room.

I was alone with the machine. The image of "Beam me up, Scotty," returned to mind. Then there was an ominous "click" coming from the wall to the left. I didn't dare move. In about 10 seconds the machine began to hum, a kind of deep, sinister hum. I know those x-rays were flashing through my body, but I didn't feel anything, except something akin to that sensation you get on the back of your neck when you know somebody or something is watching you, but you can't see anything. Probably created by my imagination. The hum hummed for about 20 seconds and stopped with a loud click. Good.

Then the girls hurried back in and said, "Don't move yet." They pulled the two screens from in front of the x-ray machine head and inserted one different one, this one with the two lead blocks on the opposite side. One of them pushed a button, and the x-ray machine head rotated completely around my left side until it was under my neck and shoulder, below the Plexiglas plate. It stopped there. The girls hurried out. Then came that "click" again, followed by another 20-second hum. I had been "zapped" from both front and back. The girls hurried back in, lowered the gurney, and helped me off. I was finished for the day. I had been in the treatment room for about five minutes.

Now I knew what I was up against, five days a week for the next five weeks. As I write this, I am now into my third week of radiation therapy. The lingering side effects of the chemotherapy treatments have all but disappeared. I feel good. The only apparent side effects of radiation, so far, are the slightest hint of a sore throat, and a reddening of the skin in the radiated area with the appearance of tiny rash-like welts that itch a good part of the time.

When I saw Dr. Black two weeks ago, he said I looked good, and he didn't need to see me again until next March. I am now convinced that I will make it, and that makes all the inconvenience and discomfort worth it.

Newry officials say tax owed on motor home

By ALISON ALOISIO

Newry selectmen have taken action to try to collect some of the $2,160 in excise taxes they believe Bryce Yates owes the town for his motor home.

Yates owns a home in Newry that is a permanent structure. His motor home, however, is registered in Alaska.

But according to Sylvia Gray, Newry's administrative assistant, the motor home is primarily housed in Newry -- and therefore Yates is required by law to pay the excise tax in that town.

She said she has spoken to him several times about the tax, but so far he has not paid.

As a result, selectmen recently signed a tax supplemental bill to be sent to Yates -- meaning the town will supplement his tax bill to collect payment on the motor home as personal property. However, said Gray, the personal property tax rate only allows collection of $1,450 on the home.

Contacted last week, Yates said his motor home "has been out-of-state a lot more than it has been in."

He said he has spent the last two summers (more than three or four months, he said) in Alaska and has had the home with him. He is also registered to vote in Alaska.

He purchased the motor home about a year and a half ago in Iowa, he said. He said he was told by the Maine Motor Vehicle Registry that it was permissible to register it in Alaska.

"But Sylvia said they told her something different," he said.

Yates said he also learned from the Good Sam Club (an organization of RV owners) that if a vehicle is on the road more than six months out of the year, "you have a right to register it anywhere you want," he said.

Asked if he planned to pay the personal property bill he has now received from Newry, Yates said he would first make inquiries about it to the state.

Telstar bans pagers

BETHEL--Telstar High School recently banned students from wearing pagers in school. Principal Ted Davis said in a letter to parents that "more and more students ... are receiving calls throughout the day, which is very disruptive in the classrooms." Davis said other schools, particularly in southern Maine, have also banned the pagers. Their reasons included concerns that the pagers are being used to set up drug deals, he said. Although use of the pagers for that reason does not appear to be a problem at Telstar, Davis said the administration generally wants to deal with the increasing trend toward pagers by "nipping it in the bud," he said. Students who are members of a volunteer organization, such as a fire department or ambulance service, will be allowed to continue carrying their pagers.

Agreement reached on Kelley's

BETHEL--"We agreed to compromise," said Spencer Couture, manager of Kelley's Auto Parts -- "we'll do it the way the Planning Board wants." Following what chairman Frank Vogt called, "the longest recorded site walk to date," the Bethel Planning Board and Couture agreed informally to a plan for landscaping the area between the front of the business and Mechanic Street. Curbing will be installed along the street (per an earlier decision by the town selectmen), but the curbing will be inset in part to allow space for two onstreet parking spots. A band of plantings will be placed along the curb, and behind those there will be two additional parking spaces, one designated as handicapped. A walkway and strip of grass (currently in place) will fill the remaining space in front of the building.

Pathway Committee appointed

BETHEL--Town selectmen have appointed seven members to the new Pathway Committee. The committee was formed in the hope of moving forward on the proposed recreational path through Bethel Station. The seven members appointed Monday, all on unanimous votes, are Emmy Merrill, Robert Lowell, Bill Wight, Jay Milot, Kirk Siegel, Elaine Riendeau and Dewaine Craig. They were selected from more than a dozen applicants.

Mt. Abram hearing scheduled

GREENWOOD--Selectmen will hold a public hearing Nov. 25 at 5 p.m. regarding a request by Ski Mt. Abram to illuminate its ski slopes an additional two nights a week. The ski area would offer night skiing, for use by schools only, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Last year, Mt. Abram operated at night on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

Selectmen looking for road funding

NEWRY--Town officials plan to meet with the Regional Transportation Advisory Committee to discuss the potential for an MDOT Road Development Award to widen part of the Sunday River Road. Funding is available for improvements to roads classified as collector roads. The section from the town line to the turn at the Skiway Access Road would fall under that designation, according to selectmen. Ideally, said first selectman Steve Wight, the road could be widened to include bike lanes on both sides. If the town qualified for an award, the state would cover 75 percent of the cost and Newry would pay 25 percent. Selectmen are also looking into state road improvement funds available for roads leading to historic sites. Parts of the Sunday River Road from the Skiway Access Road intersection to Artist's Bridge may qualify.

Newry takes a holiday

NEWRY--The Newry Town Office will close at noon on the day before Thanksgiving (Nov. 26) and on Christmas Eve.

Man sues Mead for injuries

MOULTONBORO, N.H.--An Andover man is suing the Mead Corp. as a result of injuries he received in 1996 at the Rumford mill. Peter Hurd fell 10 feet from a roof when a ladder he stepped on slipped. His suit said he was caused immediate pain, disability, a fractured spine and permanent impairment. Hurd is charging Mead with negligence, but Mead lawyers maintain the fall and injuries were caused by his own negligence. Hurd's lawsuit said the ladder was the upper half of an extension ladder, and was not designed to be a base.

Telemarketing center opens

OXFORD--A ribbon-cutting ceremony with Gov. Angus King was held Friday at the ICT Group's new telemarketing center in Oxford. The center is expected to eventually employ 250 people. An estimated 30 new employees will be hired each month until the facility reaches full capacity.

Crown Vantage sells land

BERLIN, N.H.--The Crown Vantage company has sold 108,000 acres of timberland, including 83,200 acres in New Hampshire and Maine, for $36 million. The land was purchased by two companies, Hancock Timber Resources Group of Boston, and Yankee Forest Limited Liability Corp., registered in Concord. Yankee's acreage includes some located in Upton and Grafton, Me. Included in both contracts were long-term wood supply contracts with Crown Vantage. Both companies also agreed to follow the Sustainable Forestry Initiative.

Landowners ask for pipeline rehearing

NO. STRATFORD, NH--The owner of 113 acres on which the Portland Natural Gas Transmission System plans to build a pipeline has filed an appeal for a rehearing with the Federal Energy Regulatory Agency. The petition was filed on behalf of both the landowner and an association of about 30 Connecticut River Valley residents. All the residents will be affected by condemnation proceedings under the PNGTS's right of eminent domain. They are asking that the line, scheduled for construction in 1998, be rerouted. The rehearing request cites environmental and development issues associated with the project as areas of concern.

CMP begins new power line study

AUGUSTA--Central Maine Power Company is studying the need to add an additional transmission line along existing power line corridors to serve proposed co-generation plants in Rumford and Jay. The study area consists of 80 miles along an existing transmission line extending northerly from Harrison to Rumford, easterly from Rumford through Jay to Livermore Falls, and southerly from Livermore Falls to Gulf Island Substation in Lewiston. The proposed gas-fired power plants, which will be owned by private power developers, will require between two and 45 miles of new transmission line, depending on whether both plants are approved and the final configuration of the plants. The study will focus on environmental constraints and the cost and feasibility of construction of a new transmission line. Some existing power line corridors have adequate width to accommodate an additional transmission line, while other corridors would need to be widened by up to 90 feet. The study is expected to be completed by July 1998. CMP employees will survey the corridors and meet with property owners to discuss the proposed new line, according to the company.

Ski privilege card offered

AUGUSTA--Cross-country skiers can help thousands breathe easier by purchasing a 1997-98 Cross Country Ski Privilege Card for $50 from the American Lung Association of Maine. The card features 15 of Maine's cross-country centers, and entitles the holder and up to four friends to unlimited half-price skiing for the season. Centers include the Bethel Inn, Carter's Cross Country Ski Center, both in Bethel, and Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center in Newry. For more information call 1-800-458-6472.

From the Bethel Police log:

Kids quicker than train -- this time

At 10:05 p.m. on Nov. 13 an engineer for the St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railroad reported that while operating his train near the Main Street crossing, two juveniles ran out in front of the train, causing him to slam on the brakes. The engineer wanted to press charges if the subjects were located, but they could not be found.

At 10:37 p.m. a subject was seen on the property of a Bethel apartment complex. He had been previously notified that he was not to come on to the premises. Quentin E. Buker, 20, of West Paris was summonsed for criminal trespass. He was advised that if he were seen on the property again he would be arrested.

Saturday, Nov. 15

At 9:35 p.m. police responded to the Chase Road for a report of a suspicious vehicle that was stuck. According to the complainant, there were two trucks that had driven by, and it was the second one that became stuck. When the complainant yelled to the operator of the second vehicle, the person took off, running up a hill. The complainant was concerned about possible night hunting, because a gunshot and the sound of a vehicle speeding away had been heard the night before. The subject could not be located. Information was turned over to the warden service.

Sunday, Nov. 16

At 1:32 a.m. police responded to a single vehicle rollover on Route 2 toward West Bethel. The scene of the accident was found to be just over the line in Gilead. Police stood by and took vehicle information, because the operator had fled the scene. The vehicle was removed by a towing service and information was taken for the Sheriff's Department.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies. An answering machine takes calls when an officer is not in the office.

THE HANOVER/BETHEL FERRY at the turn of the century. One third owned by the town of Bethel and two thirds by Hanover, it crossed the Androscoggin River near Hanover Village to the East Bethel side from 1873 to 1934, when it was discontinued. SSDC

Those 385 extra gpd would be more than enough to accommodate the three daycare proposals mentioned above, so Schlieper recently approached Gendron to see if he would be willing to "donate" the excess capacity to the town.

He agreed, she said, after receiving an assurance that the Rite Aid project would not require any further credits.

The selectmen must now decide if they wish to go ahead with the proposal, despite the fact that there is no policy covering such an arrangement. Board members also noted Monday that treating the SSDC credits as transferable commodities raises a number of legal questions.

The proposal has been sent to the town attorney for review and the selectmen will take up the matter again Monday, Nov. 24, at 7 p.m. in the Town Office meeting room. The public is welcome.

Cable

equally hesitant to put the extension burden on Newry subscribers.

First selectman Steve Wight said Tuesday that although he is sympathetic about the cost of running cable up Bear River Road, "FrontierVision" is not talking about the rate of return they'll get on the (new Jordan Grand) hotel," he said. "They should deal with it on a holistic basis."

Regarding Gasser's point that many people already have satellite dishes, administrative assistant Sylvia Gray said, "I think a lot of people would take cable and scrap the dishes" -- because, she said, local programming is not available by satellite.

The selectmen then decided to circulate the petition to see how much support there is for cable. Anyone interested in the petition may sign it at the Town Office.

Selectmen also plan to set up a meeting with Gasser.

Skier

when he slid into trees and suffered abdominal injuries. Hansen, who was considered an expert skier, died two weeks later at Maine Medical Center in Portland.

His wife, Christina Hansen, filed suit against the resort in 1995.

In her complaint, Hansen alleged that Sunday River "was negligent in its maintenance and operation of this slope" -- leading to her husband's death.

"The thing that meant the most to (Mrs. Hansen) was that (the jury) found unanimously that Andy was not negligent at all," said her lawyer, William Robitsek, citing another jury vote.

The day before Hansen's accident, another Massachusetts skier died after sliding 1,000 feet and into the trees bordering White Heat.

Sunday River spokesman Michael Bertie declined to comment Wednesday on either the $600,000 award or a possible appeal.

significantly increased the number of days on which Indian gambling could be conducted, was passed by the last session. Only a veto by Gov. Angus King prevented it from going into law.

The spokesmen for the Albany project have vehemently denied they plan to eventually expand from bingo to a casino -- as did the Foxwoods complex in Connecticut.

But in an Oct. 12 article, the Boston Globe reported that tribal Governor John Stevens "admits that a large-scale facility for serious gamblers is a distinct possibility. 'Probably in time we'd like to do that,'" Stevens is quoted as saying.

Whatever the tribe's plans, there is little the selectmen will be able to do today to affect the situation, since only Rosenblatt and a representative are expected to be given time to speak.

LURC Chairman Steve Wight (who is also Newry first selectman) said Wednesday he felt that by this point all the possible arguments had been made, and there was little to gain from further discussion.

(With the formal comment process officially closed, Wight has also been prohibited from discussing the specifics of the proposal. To avoid that, he said, he was having his calls screened. "And last night (Tuesday) the answering machine ran out of tape.")

Looking down the road ahead, Rosenblatt urged the selectmen Monday "to make an informed decision and participate in the process before it's too late."

The selectmen, who are already on record against the bingo hall, agreed to hold another public meeting.

"I agree this is a serious issue we need to discuss further," said chairman Dutch Dresser. "We need to make ourselves informed and consider what actions we might take."

R.E.A.C.H. RAFFLE

R.E.A.C.H., the Rape Education and Crisis Hotline, is currently holding a fundraising raffle. Local stained glass artist Don Johnson has donated a stained glass floral panel, which he designed and created, to the nonprofit organization to raise funds.

R.E.A.C.H. serves the Oxford County and Western Maine areas providing services and support for victims and survivors of sexual assault and their families.

The drawing will take place on Feb. 4 at the monthly Board of Directors meeting. Tickets are a donation of $1 each or six for $5 and may be purchased from any R.E.A.C.H. board member, staff member or advocate, or by calling the office at 743-9777. R.E.A.C.H. would like to thank Don Johnson for creating and donating this beautiful stained glass piece and The Printery in Bridgton for donating the raffle tickets.

HEALTHY LIVING

Nonprescription Pain Relievers: Do We Build Up a Tolerance?

(NU) - More than half of all Americans stock their medicine cabinets with at least two brands of non-prescription pain relievers. Results of a recent survey, conducted by The Wirthlin Group, an independent opinion research firm, may help to explain why.

The survey found that a majority of Americans believe they can get used to, or build up a tolerance to, a nonprescription pain reliever that is used repeatedly.

Dr. Stephen Cooper, D.M.D., Ph.D., assistant vice president, clinical research at Whitehall-Robins Healthcare says, "Although there is no medical evidence that demonstrates tolerance, it is certainly true that the same pain reliever does not work on all people, all the time, for every pain condition."

"That's why consumers today are fortunate in that they have an important new nonprescription pain relief option. Just recently, the government approved over-the-counter sale of ORUDIS[®]KT[™], a powerful, fast-acting pain reliever previously available by prescription only."

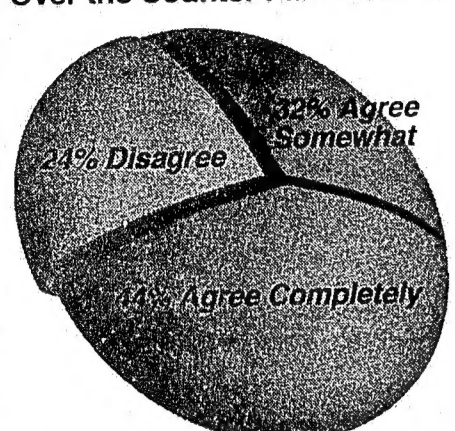

The Wirthlin survey also revealed that more than one half of Americans believe that alternating between brands of nonprescription pain relievers can provide them with better pain relief.

The study was conducted via telephone interviews with 1,000 Americans during the weekend of Oct. 13 to 15, 1995. It is the first in a series of studies and surveys conducted as part of the ORUDIS KT Pain Alert.

Manufactured by Whitehall-Robins Healthcare, a leading manufacturer of over-the-counter pharmaceuticals, ORUDIS KT caplets and tablets contain 12.5 mg of ketoprofen. It is indicated for the temporary relief of minor aches and pains of a cold, headache, toothache, muscular aches, backache, the minor pain of arthritis, menstrual cramps and temporary reduction of fever.

ORUDIS KT is the non-prescription strength of ORUDIS[®]. First synthesized in 1967, ORUDIS has a highly regarded prescription heritage among health care professionals in the United States and worldwide. It has been prescribed millions of times in more than 83 countries and is still available by prescription. It is estimated that worldwide patients have taken almost 5 billion tablets of the medicine in the drug.

Can you build up a tolerance? A survey reveals that a majority of Americans think they can.

Despite Better Treatments, People With AIDS Still at Risk

Common Infections, Including CMV, Remain a Concern

News USA

(NU) - There is a lot of good news about the treatment of AIDS these days. But a leading scientific journal warns that despite the availability of better treatments, many people with this disease remain at risk for cytomegalovirus (CMV) infection, which can cause blindness or even death.

The availability of "cocktail treatments" for AIDS (new drugs, like protease inhibitors, plus older drugs, like AZT) has led to a reduction in the number of deaths from the disease. Many people with AIDS now have stronger immune systems and more CD4+ cells, the cells that help fight viruses caused by AIDS. However, many of these people are still becoming sick from common AIDS-related opportunistic infections. These opportunistic infections include CMV, pneumonia and MAC, a bacterial infection.

CMV is caused by a herpes virus. CMV does not affect people with healthy immune systems, but for people with AIDS, who have severely compromised immune systems, CMV may cause blindness and can be life-threatening. CMV most commonly affects the eyes (CMV retinitis), but it also can infect other organs, including the colon and esophagus.

Research results, reported recently in the well-known British medical journal The Lancet, confirmed what physicians are seeing — that combination drug therapy does not provide full protection from CMV.

"Physicians who treat AIDS are now realizing that seemingly healthy patients can succumb to infections like CMV," said Dr. Wilbert Jordan of the Martin Luther King/Drew Medical Center in Los Angeles.

Even though deaths from AIDS are declining, remaining watchful for opportunistic infections is a particularly important issue for the African-American and Latina/Latino communities. This is explained by statistics from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, which show that the number of opportunistic infections in these communities is still alarmingly high.

In fact, the CDC's 1996 HIV/AIDS Surveillance Report reveals that the number of opportunistic infections among African-Americans with AIDS increased by more than 10,000 cases from 1990 to 1995. Even more distressing is the number of opportunistic infections in the Latina/Latino community, which rose by more than 30 percent during the same period.

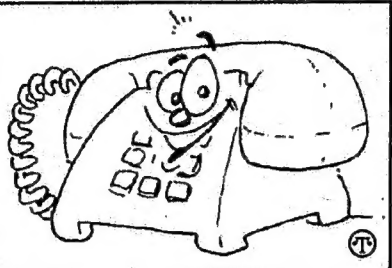

Physicians are looking for new strategies and treatments to protect their patients' eyesight from the irreversible damage of CMV retinitis and the potentially life-threatening infections caused by CMV.

"It is risky to prematurely take patients off drugs that protect them from CMV and other AIDS-related infections, even if they have high CD4+ counts and appear healthy. There may be a long-lasting weakness in their immune system. So I believe in combining treatments for my patients so that they can fight HIV and CMV at the same time," said Dr. Jordan.

People with AIDS should always be watchful for symptoms of CMV retinitis. Symptoms include blurred vision, blind spots and small dark spots — called "floaters" — in the eye. These symptoms are not positive proof that CMV exists, but suggest that a trip to the doctor is needed. The virus can be detected with a laboratory test.

Fight Cold and Flu: Change Toothbrushes

(NU) - While experts say you should replace your toothbrush every three to four months, most people buy fewer than two toothbrushes each year and are usually reluctant to replace them more often.

Studies show that bacteria can survive outside the body on toothbrush bristles. Toothbrushes are often kept in a humid bathroom near others, so there's a potential for germs to spread quickly.

If you want to help stop the spread of a cold or a virus, the first place to look is in the bathroom. Here are some tips from Oral-B Laboratories, maker of the new Advantage toothbrush with micro-textured bristles, as well as other oral care products:

- When you have a cold, don't use the same toothpaste tube as the rest of the family.

- Don't forget to brush your tongue and the roof of your mouth. It will help freshen breath and clean your mouth by removing bacteria.

- After brushing, soak your toothbrush in an antibacterial mouth rinse for approximately 20 minutes. Then hang it to dry, making sure it's not touching anyone else's toothbrush.

- When your cold is gone, replace your toothbrush with a new one to avoid re-infecting yourself with lingering bacteria from your old toothbrush.

Fight Hypertension, Reduce Salt Intake

(NU) - The average American consumes 3 teaspoons of salt per day, twice the amount recommended by the American Heart Association and the National Institutes of Health.

These figures are alarming because 50 million Americans suffer from hypertension (high blood pressure) which, when left untreated, can lead to more serious conditions including heart attack and stroke.

Patients with hypertension often have difficulty cutting back on salt intake. Now, however, a new salt alternative may make sodium reduction a reality for the millions of Americans who love the taste of salt.

Cardia[™] Salt Alternative has been found in clinical studies to lower blood pressure when used in place of salt. It has a real salt taste — not the bitter, metallic taste of most salt substitutes, and can be used just like salt measure-for-measure in cooking, baking and at the table.

In addition to reducing sodium and maintaining adequate amounts of potassium and magnesium, the NIH has several other suggestions to help Americans control hypertension: lose weight, limit alcohol intake, exercise regularly, stop smoking, and reduce fat and cholesterol in your diet. And have your blood pressure checked at least once a year.

TIPS ON TRIPS

More Happiness, Less Hassle

(NAPS)—Packing your bags is one of the "necessary evils" connected with traveling. To make it easier, the experts at the National Tour Association offer these tips.

One common mistake many travelers make is packing too many clothes. To avoid this problem, try to coordinate your wardrobe around one or two basic colors. Eliminate many items of clothing as well as shoes. Separates work well, since they can be mixed and matched. It is important to realize, however, that unusual weather is always a possibility. Layering clothing is an effective way to prepare for an unexpected cold spell or heat wave.

Once you've decided what to take, eliminating as many items as possible, you may still have trouble fitting everything into your suitcase. In that case, stuff hosiery into the toes of your shoes and pack small sizes of toiletry articles.

To minimize wrinkling, button shirts before packing and fold them only at the waist and seams. Rolling items such as sweatshirts fills space, which keeps the contents of your bag from sliding and wrinkling. Remember to bring hangers to hang clothes and unpack as soon as you arrive at your destination.

NTA would also like to suggest safety precautions to consider. Have your bags clearly labeled with identification information on both the inside and outside of every piece of luggage. Carry fragile and valuable items, as well as a toothbrush, in your carry-on bag. It is also a good idea to keep with you a list of the contents of your bags in order to make a claim if they are lost or stolen. Packing some of your traveling companion's clothes in your suitcase and vice-versa can be beneficial if one of you has a bag misplaced.

Before you leave, it is wise to walk around with your bag for a few minutes to test the weight. If it is too heavy, you may need to readjust your packing. Lightweight bags, such as canvas or nylon, are practical choices to use if possible. Suitcases with wheels can also make carrying baggage easy.

Finally, keep in mind that most travelers return with more items than they had when they left, so remember to leave room for souvenirs. Perhaps pack an empty bag to bring back your purchases.

When it comes to enjoyable travel, preparation is practically everything. Taking the time to pack wisely before leaving can be the key to an enjoyable trip.

The National Tour Association is an organization of nearly 4,000 North American tourism professionals focused in the development, promotion and increased use of tour operator-packaged travel. NTA serves as a consumer advocate by promoting excellence in all forms of packaged travel. For more information, call 800-755-TOUR ext. 62, TDD 606-226-4211, e-mail sperry@ntaonline.com, or write the National Tour Association, Dept. MR, PO Box 3071, Lexington, KY 40596-3071.

Get Through The School Lunch Daze With Back-To-School Power Lunches

(NAPS)—Getting a child to eat what's packed for lunch is a universal challenge for parents. Combined with a healthy breakfast, a nutritious lunch can help boost a child's energy and concentration throughout the afternoon. Now there's help. Libby's[®] Juicy Juice[®] has some fun and easy ways to get kids to eat good-for-you lunches to keep them energized all day long and start them down the road to healthy eating habits.

To help ensure that lunches aren't traded or tossed away, get kids involved in the planning and packing of their lunch. "I sit down with my children and plan out the different lunches for the week," says Jodie Shield, a registered dietitian and mother of three. "The kids select the grains, vegetables, fruits, proteins and dairy they like and will eat."

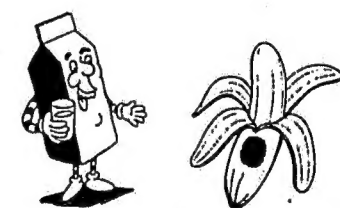

- Keep foods safe. Pack the lunch in an insulated bag and provide a cooling source, like a Juicy Juice box that's been frozen overnight. It will keep the other foods cool and your child will have a delicious and nutritious slushy beverage by noontime.

- Make lunch fun. Kids love colors and shapes, so take five minutes to jazz up a regular lunch. Cookie cutters make sandwiches entertaining. A fire truck or puppy dog peanut butter sandwich is much more fun for children than a regular PB&J. And, finger foods are king with kids. Consider packing two sandwiches made on mini bagels or slicing a sandwich into quarters.

- "A peel" to your kids with the hottest new taste rage—tropical. Tempt your kids' taste buds with fun fruit flavors such as kiwi, mango and melon in juices, gelatin and yogurts.

- Don't forget a "special something." Send along a few lower fat cookies such as animal crackers or vanilla wafers. Some fruit bars now come in lower fat varieties, and kids love them.

Remember, it's important that children look forward to lunch so provide them with a variety of foods and they won't get bored with or trade away their lunches.

Bethel

by Arlene Brown & Ginny Keniston

Phyllis and Sonny Blake, Jerry and Sheila Verrill and children enjoyed an early Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Blake, William and Ethan in Somersville. Also celebrated were Gerard and William's birthdays.

Mike and Connie Thurston returned home Saturday night after being on a tour of England, Scotland and Wales.

Jane Young, Betty Perkins, Musa Brown and Emma Page enjoyed the Lawrence Welk program in Augusta on Sunday.

Jim Stoner is now living at the "Barron House" in Westbrook.

Roger and Louise Poisson spent the weekend with her mother and sister, Louise and Nancy Lincoln. The Poissons are building a new home in York.

Lucy Stevens of Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich., visited her sister, Gertrude Hutchins, this past week.

An early winter snowstorm on Saturday makes us realize winter is here (four inches).

Darryl and Debbie Brown of Old Town spent several days in town recently. Darryl's father, John K.

Brown, joined them for dinner one evening during their stay.

New construction noticed in town include the Gary Yorks' new garage (on Vernon Street) which went up in a day, and John Dickson has had a garage built at his home on Kilborn Street.

Barbara Lucas' house on Church Street is resplendent in a new coat of paint applied by B & B Painting. Looks great, Barb.

Residents of Paradise Road have some new neighbors. Barry and Teresa Estes have bought the George Nickerson house and have moved there with their three sons, Stephen, who attends Telstar High School, Christopher is in the Middle School, and Jonathan at Crescent Park School. The Estes moved to Bethel from Vermont, and Barry is employed by the American Ski Company at Sunday River.

Several members of Gould's Class of '38 gathered at Jane Chapin Sullivan's home in Portland for dinner and visiting last week. From Bethel were Gerry Stanley Howe, Libby Lyon Bane, from Rumford, Christie Thurston Knight, and from Windham, Ethel Jodrey Robillard.

"Miss Sue turns 80"

On Saturday, Nov. 8, family and friends of Susan Clement Farrar gathered at her Spring Street, Bethel, home to surprise her and celebrate her 80th birthday.

The party was planned and hosted by her children and spouses: Michelle Farrar Keyes of Falmouth, Doug and Jan Farrar of Burke, Vt., Lisa and Larry Fox of Bethel, and Paul and Andrea Farrar of Portland.

Over 85 people attended the party. The lovely cake was made by Lois Kilroy at the Hometown Bakery, and a beautiful floral centerpiece designed by Ann Friedlander of The Unicorn Flower Shop included ballet pink roses and dancing lady Orchids.

Guests attending from out of town included granddaughter Emily Keyes of Rocky Mt., N.C.; grandson Chris Keyes and friend Tiffany of Boston, Mass.; grandsons Joel and Thomas Farrar of Burke, Vt.; granddaughter Naomi Fox and fiancé Jason Manjourides of University of Maine at Farmington; grandson Amos Fox and friend Khara of Portland; Eileen and Mike Chretien of New Gloucester; Steve and Molly Saunders of Wayne; and Addison "Sonny" Saunders of Ellsworth.

A family dinner followed the party at Mothers Restaurant hosted by Kara O'Donnell.

The Bethel House

The Rev. Mowery's message for last Sunday was "Turning Our Hearts Toward Home." He showed another video on "The Persecuted Church." Drew Webster gave the opening prayer, Judy Webster was at the piano, and she was accompanied by Peggy Mowery on the flute. Shane Clarke led in the hymn singing. Hymns sung were: "When We All Get To Heaven," "Face to Face," "Oh that Will be Glory to Me," "Until Then," and "Beyond the Sunset."

Frances Whitman has moved into the apartment at the Bethel House that Adelia Waterhouse vacated.

The Rev. Nathan Seckinger, former pastor of the Bethel Alliance Church, was in town a few days last week to get in some hunting with his friend, Sherm Small. He visited with Ruth Cummings at the Bethel House on Thursday and they had lunch at Pat's Pizza.

The Rev. Seckinger also visited with Nancy Fox and others while in town.

John Kallis is a patient at Stephens Memorial Hospital, due to a back injury received in an auto accident in Stoneham recently. After he gets out of the hospital he will be in a convalescent home in Norway for a while.

Vada Glover visited Ruth Cummings Tuesday of last week. They went shopping, had lunch at Shannors, and also played cribbage. They have played 543 games, and Vada is now one game in the lead.

Ethan Seckinger's arm, that he broke while at play last summer, healed very nicely, but the doctor says he must be very careful because it was a very bad break and if he should break it again it may not heal properly.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Hanscom visited his sister Amy at the Rumford Community Home on Tuesday of last week.

K.C. Denton of Coastal Management is the new maintenance tech for the Bethel House. He replaces Tim Fournier.

Shannon Sumner is also a maintenance man at the Bethel House.

Jack Cross will keep the parking lot plowed and walks at the Bethel House this winter.

Tom Russell and Margaret Quinlan were both visitors of Irene Russell last week, and Margaret and Irene went to the potluck supper at the Locke Mills Church Saturday night.

Paul Bartlett visited his mother, Helena Bartlett, at the Bethel House one day last week.

West Bethel

by Karen Jordan

A friend recently remarked that she was glad for winter because she loved big, woolly sweaters.

The statement got me to thinking about winter and what there was good about it. It took me some time to find a warm thought on the subject, but eventually my mind sped back to my youth and the hills around my childhood home. Remember now that I lived on the Flat Road so hills could be hard to come by. Behind my house there was a big hole in the ground where men on machines dug gravel and hauled it truck loads at a time to build roads around Bethel. When this pit was covered with snow, the steep banks were treacherously steep and fast, though not a long slide. We kids and our little dog, Lassie, would wade down across the back field into the unknown territory, "the pit," and climb and slide until we were so cold that we could not feel our toes.

As we grew older, we would traverse across the field behind Hollis Hutchinson's into the woods and slide on the foothills of Sparrowhawk. In those days I didn't know this ridge had a fancy name, I only knew it by the name of each logging road or clearing where we met to slide. There was one steep downhill slide cleared enough to get a good run near home, but to get the best slide in the neighborhood there was only one place to go -- "Dead Man's Curve."

Behind Emerson Clough's house we would climb the sloping field, and enter the woods road where we would drag sleds and toboggans until we literally fell from exhaustion. The woods road seemed like it was a mile or so straight up with one killer curve near the top of the ridge. Any winter afternoon, a dozen or more neighborhood kids could be found crawling all over that hill. Red-checked and happy, we would bravely climb to the top and try to take the whole length of the hill without getting separated from our snow vehicles. We were fearless as we donned our sleds and attempted the run. Some of the more courageous sat high on sleds, but the most dangerous was the toboggan because the one curve was so sharp that nobody could stay in the trail. Emerson had an old Polaris snow machine when we were older and would pull us behind it around the field and up the hills.

STILL A CRACK SHOT--Pete Andrews, 82, of South Woodstock shot this 185-pound deer on the run, with one shot. Andrews' grandson, David Hill, described what happened: "I jumped a big deer. I could hear him go ... his antlers hit on saplings during his escape. My grandfather was sitting in a cutting several hundred yards away when he heard something, so he stood up and took a few steps to gain a better view. It was at that time he saw this 10-point buck running broadside about 50 yards away. He led the deer with his 308 Savage and dropped him with a single shot." Andrews was modest about his accomplishment. "It's good to be able to still get out and walk around with the young people," he said.

Does anybody remember the winter of '64? We had a snowy winter with rain on top to form a very hard crust, rugged enough to hold all but the largest man. Someone in the neighborhood brought home heavy canvas mats from the mill in Rumford and we all gathered for the biggest sledding party West Bethel had seen in recent years. Behind the "Irrigation Hole," now Bubba's pond, was the "Big Field."

We had a huge bonfire near the bottom of the hill for warmth. We slid all afternoon and with the glow from the fire we kept on into the darkness stopping occasionally to drink hot cocoa, toast marshmallows and remove our boots. We had to warm our toes enough to walk again, then we were off. The slope was glazed and the mats were difficult to steer.

The hill angled on one side and dropped suddenly into a ravine and brook. I don't remember who, but somebody lost control and slid right straight through the fire. This was the only time I recall the whole neighborhood coming together to play; young and old, we all enjoyed the fun of winter and her icy offerings.

Mary Morin, a member of the Newry Mothers Club, is moving out of town permanently. We will miss her, she has been a very faithful member and contributed fully to keep the club going. If anyone wishes to contact her, the address is, 60 Ayer Road New Gloucester, ME 04260. We wish you a pleasant and healthy future, Mary.

The Newry Mothers Club met Monday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Town Building with 13 members, would-be members and guests; Peggy Wight, Mary Morin, Nancy Wight, Eleanor Davis, Karlene Bachelder, Sylvia Wight, Olivé Anderson, and Gil Seeley; would-be members Joan Bartlett, Brenda Bartholomew and daughter Eden, Laura Lowell, Patty Lowell, and Leslie Bonney. After an opening prayer by Gil, secretary/treasurer Olivé had roll call, brought the finances up to date, reported on sending cards to the shut-ins and so forth. The mystery prize was won by Brenda, who also volunteered to chair the Mother/Daughter Banquet next summer. A Christmas party will be at the next meeting, Dec. 8, with a tasting party and exchange of gifts. It was decided also to bring food articles to donate to the District Exchange at the Ethel Bisset School in Bethel. After long discussions, the meeting was adjourned, and coffee, etc. was enjoyed.

Karlene Bachelder, Gil Seeley, Eleanor Davis and Sylvia Wight went to the Oxford Lanes in Rumford to do some bowling for fun. On the overall scores Karlene was high on the singles with one string of 109. She was also high on the triples. She had seven spares, Gil had one strike and four spares, and Eleanor had one spare.

The Newry Recreation Committee is having its annual cookie decorating party on Saturday, Dec. 6, 4 p.m. at the Town Office. It's a fun time for the children and their parents. Cookies and decorations are provided, so just come and enjoy. Following the cookie decorating the tree will be lit and carols sung. Who knows? -- maybe Santa will visit. Hope to see you there.

Mason Township

by Richard Grover

Since I began this column, it has become obvious to me that I do have close enough contact with all Mason residents to know about "everything" that goes on in the plantation. So, if any of you out there are having activities of note, please give me a call. I don't want to miss anything or anybody.

Things were pretty quiet around here last weekend. Nobody shot any deer that they are telling about, and most of the shots I heard were over around Sparrowhawk Mountain someplace, sounded like, Rupert Jr. and his wife Suzanne brought their grandson Samuel and spent Friday night with Rupert and Ina. Then Saturday, the hunters in the family went out and got lots of fresh air and exercise, while Ina and Suzanne enjoyed the day with little Sam.

David Hanscom's daughter, Becky, brought the twins up and spent a good deal of the weekend in Mason, while husband Charles was in California. The twins, Megan and Emma, are very active two-year-olds, and the apple of their grandfather David's eye. I know Dave's house must really resonate quiet when the little ones have gone home.

On Sunday afternoon, while I was being initiated into the "40 & 8," a branch of the American Legion, I'm told the biggest part of Mason's population, including my wife, Mona, were at the West Bethel Church. The occasion was the installation of minister, Joyce Scott as pastor of that church. Joyce is very popular among the church members, especially the "Masonites," and hers was a very special and moving ceremony, which I hope is described in the "West Bethel" article.

This being November, I thought it might be appropriate to relate one of the Brother Rupert's hunting stories. He says this is a true story, and I believe him, because it's too original to be made up. I'm telling this story as accurately as I can recollect in his own words.

"When the boys were in high school, I used to tell 'em if they really wanted to get a deer, all they had to do was sneak up to the Little Orchard every morning before they went to school. (The Little Orchard is a small clearing in back of the house with several old apple trees that is nearly surrounded by woods.) I guarantee you that some morning before the end of hunting season you'll catch a deer there under the apple tree. Every once in a while, one of those old bucks that has been out rutting all night will sneak back out for a late morning snack before he goes to lie down somewhere.

"Well, the boys didn't pay no 'tension, so one fall I decided to prove it to 'em. The first few days of deer huntin' I snuck up to the Little Orchard looking for deer. Well I didn't see no deer but I jumped a 'pettridge' under an apple tree just about every morning.

"I decided I'd fix that situation, and I'd go prepared for both deer and 'pettridge.' So I took a rifle in one hand and a shotgun in the other. I sneaked up around behind the orchard and came in from the back side; didn't see no deer. I stepped into the orchard looking for the 'pettridge,' when all of a sudden I heard a buck blow. Right then, I knew I'd screwed up. The only thing I can figure, was that deer had his head down eatin' apples when I looked, and I just didn't see him.

"Anyway, that buck decided to leave in a hurry. I knelt down to lay the shotgun on the ground with my right hand while I cocked the rifle with my left thumb. Why I didn't just drop that beat up ol' 12 gauge, I don't know. Well this crooked left thumb don't work so well as it used to, and it slipped off the hammer. Bang! The rifle went off, pointing straight up, and that deer was close. He was so close, I could see his eye winks. When that gun went off he just rolled his eyes, and he winked at me as he went by.

"Well, that 'bang' smartened me right up, and I dropped the shotgun and levered another round into the chamber. By that time, the buck was fast disappearin' into the woods. I fired one round off at him, but I knew I couldn't hit him."

This story has been a legend in the family for a good many years.

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing

We were very sad to hear of the death of Bob Silver. Sympathy goes out to his mother, Betty; his wife, Ruby; and his many relatives and friends. He will be missed very much.

Richard Wing paid a visit to Shirley Koskela who lives on the Koskela Road here in South Woodstock. Shirley raises red deer and the horns are processed for medicine. He had one extra large buck, nine deer in all. Richard said they were very interesting to see.

Clairabel Poland went to Dr. Holt in Portland one day this week and had laser surgery on her right eye. Everything seems OK now.

Rick and Lisa Mack have a new (used) mobile home. This is a much larger model than they had and the extra room will be appreciated as they have three girls, who up till now shared one room.

The Nadeau Garage is just about finished and is a very nice looking building with signs designating what each bay is to be used for.

Harold and Doreen Wilber's home is now all landscaped and looks real neat.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society, reports that the recent meeting featured a presentation on minerals by Dennis Gross, who runs a shop in Bryant Pond. Curator Billings donated some glass, china, and a copper luster pitcher to the society. Thanks were expressed for the Mann's Mill sign and to Mr. Corrin for moving it. The December meeting will be a potluck supper at 6 p.m. and a Christmas party afterwards.

Quote of the week: "I've learned that when someone offers to pay you now or later, choose now."

Greenwood City

by Colista Morgan

When I was looking over my scrapbooks last week I came upon "Trails Remembered," which I put together. It contains many pictures and my essays written over many years. I couldn't put that one away until I had reviewed it. To me it is a valuable treasure, for memories are the days we knew and images that linger deep within the mind. The scenes are of rural Maine and New Hampshire with their constant changes. We loved the grandeur of the mountains. They stood ageless and vast, scanning the lovely earth and overlooking the panorama of trees and valley. Their rugged profiles etched their lines upon the sky. Sometimes they were brooding, other times peaceful or lonely.

"Time's fast fleeting moments/How silently they go/No more can we possess them./That's one thing we all know."

On Saturday, Nov. 15, all of the Holt family gathered to attend the wedding of Ann Holt and Bradley Payne.

Part of the pond has put on its icy coat, but it isn't buttoned up yet. The channel still flows merrily on its way.

Several members of Rena Curtis' family were with her over the weekend.

EUROPEAN VACATION

by Sadie Cole • June 21 to August 22, 1997

School vacation was fastly approaching and my days were numbered. Instead of spending the summer in front of television, I was about to embark on a grand adventure. I was heading to Germany to spend the summer with my sister Kelly. Let me tell you about some of my adventures. Once arriving in Germany there was no rest for the weary, we left a few days later for Paris, France. Embarking on a grand city tour stopping to see the Arc de Triomphe, Luxembourg gardens, Notre Dame Cathedral, and the Eiffel Tower, where we rode the elevator to the first level. We started off July with a trip to Euro Disney in France with friends Louise and Stuart Horner. Next on the list was a cruise down the Rhine River. Stopping first at the Rheinstein Castle for a tour. Once on the cruise we stopped in St. Goar to shop at the year round Christmas Market. Then we were off to catch the Alpine Highlights of Bavaria, taking along a friend, Josh Wellman. The first stop was Neuschwanstein Castle "Disneyland's Castle" built by King Ludwig II. Continuing on to Munich for a city tour and to see the world's biggest Glockenspiel. To round off the month we headed for Amsterdam, stopping at the wooden shoe factory for a demonstration then the cheese farm for a demonstration and sampling. Then we continued on to Volendam a quaint fishing village where the traditional Dutch customs are still practiced.

The fun was not over, heading into August we were off to Prague, capital of the Czech Republic. After a quick city tour we were off to the shopping district, where we found great bargains on Bohemia Crystal and Russian Folklore. Our last big trip was to visit Austria, Switzerland, and Liechtenstein. Our first stop was Brienz, the wood carving center of Switzerland for a wood carving demonstration. Continuing on to Vaduz in the tiny Principality of Liechtenstein, where we went to the famous ski resort of Malbun to ride the chair lift to the top of the 2000 meter peak for a spectacular view. Our last stop was Feldkirch Austria to tour the 12th Century Schattensburg Castle and its museums. When we weren't off to another county the time was spent with my new friends. We went to the Heidelberg Castle, the Zoo, Holiday and Europa (amusement) Park. We also had many cookouts, went swimming, and even did some camping.

The walk-a-thon is over. Thanks to all who sponsored us. Prizes will be awarded within the week. The next project to benefit the parent volunteer group will be a Christmas basket. We will be asking for donations for a chance on a great basket. Be looking for tickets and ticket sellers. The drawing will take place at the annual Christmas Concert, which will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 17, with a snow date of Thursday, the 18th. Mark that date on your calendar. The fifth grade is still taking orders for apple pies. They will be available on Monday, Nov. 24. Don't miss out.

The kindergarten and first-graders are learning about Thanksgiving and will be celebrating together with their annual Thanksgiving Feast on Friday, Nov. 21. They are working on Thanksgiving crafts.

The second-graders are having new homework in the form of a book bag book. This goes home to be read orally with Mom and Dad, then to be talked about, and a book sheet is included to be filled out with help. This should be fun for parent and child, and should "sparkle" interest and excitement in reading. This class is also enjoying their study of rocks and soil in science. Collections of all kinds are being put together.

The third-graders are excited about working with their sixth-grade buddies. They read, write and do math together once a week. In the past they have played games together, and made up games to be played. They can be buddies on the playground. Both classes enjoy this project.

The fourth-graders are reading a class book called "The Dinosaur Hunters." They are working with graphs and probability in math, and are learning about electricity in science. They are learning about gaps in circuits and how switches work.

The fifth-grade class switched rooms with Mr. Burke's sixth-grade class. We are glad to be in a larger room with space to move about. We are sending thanks to Mr. Joe Perham for visiting our class to share poetry and songs with us. We are continuing to learn a poem every week. Mr. Perham recited a poem that he learned when he was in fifth grade right in our very school. We may have to choose that one ourselves.

The sixth-graders are beginning the study of ancient Egypt in social studies by mapping the area of the Nile. At the end they will present performances and projects about Egypt.

ARTIST IN RESIDENCE--The work of New Hampshire artist Annette Woodson Mitchell is currently on display in the Owen Art Gallery at Gould Academy. She spent a morning last week teaching a workshop to students in Jan Baker's drawing class. Here, Mitchell (right) talks with student Liv Chase of Auburn.

Along with the observation platform, they are in the process of completing a bird blind and tracking pit. (See photo #2)

ExPAN Now in the High School

Telstar students go electronic to apply to college, get career and financial information. Technology Focus: ExPAN

This year, when students at Telstar search for college and career information, or need help finding sources of financial aid, they'll turn to computers. A new software tool, ExPAN, provides students with instant, complete, and up-to-date guidance information and gives them electronic access to colleges nationwide.

ExPAN is a comprehensive guidance software and admissions network created by the College Board (a nonprofit membership organization of colleges and schools that also sponsors the SAT) to give students and families information on careers and planning for college. Data bases put vital information at students' fingertips, including nearly 400 careers and military opportunities, profiles of more than 3,000 two- and four-year colleges, and more than 3,200 sources of scholarships.

ExPAN's user-friendly components also include a student portfolio of personal information. With the click of a mouse, students can automatically transfer all of their personal data into college applications. They can apply to college by transmitting the application electronically in a secure password-protected ExPAN environment via ExPAN, or by mail. ExPAN includes full descriptions of civilian and military-related occupations, cross-referenced to college majors that provide preparation for those fields of endeavor. Students simply complete a brief interest questionnaire, click on a search button, and instantly review career choices matching their interests and preferences.

Songo Pond

by Alice Kimball

"There are none so deaf as those who will not hear."

We were shocked and saddened to read of the sudden death of Oscar Andrews of Waterford. Our sympathy to his family.

Did others feel the earthquake that shook this area recently? I did get up and look under my bed, though I knew there wasn't room for anything unusual to be there.

Visitors here Saturday were Brandon and Tara Salway and little son Kyle from Old Orchard, it being his first long outing.

Weekend visitors were Kassi and Kaiti Gatchell of Portland, while Bernie was on a company business trip to Japan.

"Do what you can with what you have, where you are." --Theodore Roosevelt.

Locke Mills

by Lorraine Larson

As I promised last week, here is part one of Mansfield's Memories: A party of six residents of the Andrews House Apartments, 11 Market Square, South Paris, were at Jacque's restaurant for lunch recently. They were Elsie Bennett, Raynor and Georgia Brown, Jeanette Clifford, Ted Hamilton, Georgia and Mansfield Packard. They were accompanied by resident attendants of Andrews House, Martha Bumpus and helper Barbara Townsend.

They were no strangers to the restaurant in Locke Mills for they had eaten there when it was the famous Jordan's Restaurant.

It was a day of memories for Elsie, Georgia and Mansfield, Elsie and Georgia were longtime residents of Locke Mills and Mansfield, living on Bird Hill, always thought he was from Locke Mills. He went to school in Locke Mills, his mailing address was Locke Mills. The grocery store, barber shop, movies and dances, as well as the mill where he worked, were in Locke Mills.

Speaking of historical things, Andy and I attended the recent meetings of the Greenwood Historical Society and Bethel Historical Society. Both meetings were well attended. In Greenwood we are excited about being able to acquire the Bennett property. The extra room and buildings should give us plenty of expansion space for years to come. In Bethel listening to the panel on the life and writings of Louise Dickinson Rich were immensely informative and entertaining. It was really nice to have her daughter-in-law present along with an author who is doing her biography. But everyone who participated, including Albert Judkins, by letter as he's on his way to Florida, had a different slant and different anecdotes to tell. The present owner of the Lodge she lived in had some interesting tales to tell including the haunted bedroom, and what old house doesn't seem to have one. I certainly won't discount it though. Houses seem to retain an atmosphere left by those who come before. Certainly the little place John and I lived in felt warm and happy. Here Andy and I sometimes feel as if Mrs. French is keeping an eye on things, and seeming to give us approval as we paint and paper, etc.

I was rather startled to see under the 100 years excerpts about my grandmother Blanche Penley and my grandfather Frank Flint getting married. I did know at one time, as I did a grandfather theme my senior year at Gould, but so many other things have intruded that I had forgotten.

Andy and I attended the potluck supper and annual business meeting of Tri-Town Ambulance and Rescue Service Wednesday evening. There was a very good turnout this year. I'm glad to see that there is still a high interest in keeping the service going. Who would have thought when the service was started that one would have to have such a high level of training as is required these days. Luckily the in-service dispatchers' duties have not changed much. I wouldn't want to have to go through a more vigorous training at my age.

I need to correct my item about Owen Brown. He works in Rumford. Those towns are all so close together it's hard to know where one leaves off and another begins.

Bryant Pond

Judith Grover Tent 17 Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War met on Monday, Nov.

10, at the Grange Hall with 18 members present. Elizabeth Hoover filled in as guard and Debra Millett as assistant guard. The charter was draped in memory of past department president Verna Swan. The Lord's Prayer was repeated by all. Several were to take part in the Veterans' Day program. It was reported that two of our members were in the Veterans' Day service at the Baptist Church on Sunday evening. Beth Hoover got the program together and Marybeth sang a song. Harriett Estes and Alice Hoyt received their 50-year pins. Presenting the pins were their mothers, Edith Hathaway and Beatrice Farnum. They were presented gifts from their families. Items brought to give Togus and the veterans' homes for Christmas for them or to give to their families. It was voted to give Togus the usual Christmas donation. Nomination of officers was held. Next meeting will be Dec. 8 with a Christmas party and a tasting party. Calls reported were 64. Refreshments were served by Helvi and Michelle Cary.

The Christmas sale to benefit the Whitman Memorial Library will be held at the Grange Hall on Dec. 6, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Planners for the event would like you to help. Your contributions of baked goods, good used decorations and crafts for the sale would be appreciated. The sale will feature baked goods, seasonal decorations, crafts, library souvenirs and a cookie walk. Please call Jan Brown 665-2878 for more information.

A service honoring our veterans was held at the Baptist Church on Sunday, Nov. 9. Several veterans and their families attended the service.

Each week Good News Club is held on Tuesday evening for grades K-5 and Youth Group grade six and up at the Baptist Church. All children are invited. Bryant Pond hour on Channel IV TV is each Wednesday at 3 p.m. and Thursday at 7 p.m.

At the November meeting of the Historical Society, Dennis Gross gave a nice talk on minerals. Members discussed publications and a Christmas basket the finance committee is sponsoring. The next meeting will feature a potluck supper at 6 p.m.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson

Hi readers, The local Boy Scouts picked up the "Scouting for Food" bags Saturday, Nov. 8.

Also, on Sunday, Nov. 23, people can bring a can of food to the church. This will be for the food pantry for some who might be out of a job and with families of real low income, or for the elderly or shut-ins.

I'm up early this morning writing as I (I guess the word is) procrastinate, and today is the last day to get news out and today is a busy one for errands in town. I had to look up in the dictionary for spelling that one so you see, writing is a learning thing.

I'm anxious to see the play, "The Old Peabody Pew," that will be done at the North Waterford Church tomorrow night. It's been highly recommended and advertised.

The East Stoneham Church meeting is Nov. 19 and the United Parish meeting is at North Waterford on Nov. 20 at 7:15 p.m.

I was pleased to learn that Kitty Nelson took first place in the women's division of bowling at the Saco Valley Lanes recently with a total pin fall of 680. This puts her in second in the Western Maine Title overall bowling. Congratulations, Kitty.

Tonya Fox was around town delivering Avon products this past week. The Fox brothers have been doing some work for Arlene Merrill.

I attended the November meeting and supper for the Oxford County Republicans at Bethel Tuesday evening. We had a delicious supper of homemade beef stew, hot biscuits, cole slaw, pickles, and apple crisp with ice cream. At the meeting following, Tom Winsor introduced Kevin Concanon, commissioner of Human Services who was the featured speaker of the evening. He was very interesting and informative. He touched on many points of interest. Representative Al Barth and Norman Ferguson also gave a few words. There was no secretary's report but the treasurer's report was given and accepted.

Becky Kendall spoke about some upcoming events to take place and plans are to be made. There were about 25 people in attendance. Eleanor Nelson sold chances on the pretty little lighted Christmas tree which Barbara Brown won. A card was signed by members present to be sent to Kate Flynn (one of our favorite, active and faithful members) who is living now with her daughter in Haines, Ore.

There will be no meeting in December and the next one will be the second Tuesday in January.

C.F. Barker Inc. is doing work at South Paris on the new addition to the South Paris Library.

Oh, have you seen all the pretty red berries along the roads. Some years we couldn't find any but this year there's lots of bushes of them. Does that mean anything special? Like a mild winter or something?

From the

Bethel Area C. of C.

The chamber attended the Boston Ski Show from Nov. 13 to 16, and it had a chance to visit with many individuals and families who are considering coming to the Bethel area this winter. Thousands of brochures were distributed and information pieces on chamber members and area, too. Doing ski and travel shows is a rigorous activity for the chamber staff, as they spend up to 11 hours each day on their feet with a smile on their faces. Many thanks to Susan Isham of the Sunday River Inn, Sheila Rollins of Women With Wings, Doug Turcotte of Andover Guest House, Bill Riley of Pine Sider Lodge, and Henrietta Tranum of the Blueberry Mtn. Inn. Chamber executive director Robin Zinchuk attended and worked the show on Saturday and Sunday, as well. Other Bethel area exhibitors were the Bethel Inn and Sunday River.

The chamber Board of Directors would like to wish longtime chamber employee Becky Kendall well, as she is retiring from her position with the chamber this week. Her time and services to the chamber and its members has been invaluable during her almost 11-year tenure. Many folks do not realize that the energy, interest and follow-through she has exhibited with the people who have come into the office and called for information has resulted in new businesses, new residents and thousands of dollars of investment and visitor expenditures in our region. She will be missed.

We would also like to welcome new chamber employee Julia Reuter to the position of office manager. Julia comes to the chamber from the front desk of the Bethel Inn and has lived in Bethel for five years. Prior to that, she was a resident of Auburn, Maine and her husband, Jim, and two sons, Colin and John, live on the Grover Hill Road. Please come in and meet her, she's anxious to get to know all of you.

The chamber Board of Directors had a successful board planning retreat on Nov. 11 at the Bethel Inn. New chamber president Allen Connors facilitated the four-hour session, where board members/committee chairs had an opportunity to set some goals for the upcoming year. The committee chairs welcome anyone interested to attend the upcoming scheduled meetings:

Special/Community Projects: Sandy Dennis, Irene McGrew and Gina Bizier, chairs. Next meeting: Tuesday, Dec. 2, 6 p.m. at the River View Resort (call Sandy at 824-0275 or Rene at 824-2808 with any questions).

Education Committee: John Dickson and Susan Isham, chairs. Next meeting: Tuesday, Dec. 2, at 8:45 a.m. at the Key Bank (call John at 824-2131 or Susan at 824-2410 with questions).

Marketing Committee: Kevin Finley and Kimberly Poland, chairs. Next meeting: Tuesday, Dec. 2, at noon at the Java House (call Kevin at 824-2193 or Kimberly at 674-2771 with questions).

Administration/Policy Committee: Paula Gillies, Michele Varuolo, Anita Remington, chairs. Next meeting: Wednesday, Nov. 19, at 11:30 a.m.

Membership Committee: Steve Wight, chair. Next meeting: to be announced.

Fundraising Committee: Dave Conary, chair. Next meeting: to be announced.

The chamber would like to congratulate and recognize the efforts of the Community Conference 97 planning committee. More than 100 active and energetic Bethel area residents attended the conference and several committees targeting specific projects and issues are going to move forward on the discussions and ideas presented. It was exciting to be a part of this great day. Keep your eye on the paper for follow-up meetings on the topics identified for further action.

This week at the

Moses Mason House

A total for the Bethel Historical Society's Annual Fund Campaign soared past $8,000 this week from 291 donors. Among the latest contributors are: Alden and Mabel Kennett, Bethel; Waldo Williams, Milan, N.H.; Lois M. Kilroy, Bethel; Frances M. Saunders, Bethel; F. Harvey Bennett, Mayfield, N.Y.; Roy E. Kilgore, Nipomo, Calif. Much appreciation is expressed to all of the above for their generosity. Anyone wishing to make a tax-deductible contribution before the end of the year should send it to the society at P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217-0012.

From the

Bethel Senior Citizens

The Bethel Senior Citizens Club met Nov. 12 at the Locke Mills Legion Hall. A chicken pie dinner was served to 80 members by Legion members. The birthday cake, made by Hometown Bakery, was served with ice cream for dessert. The door prize was won by Millie Jackson. Tillie Myers won the raffle.

The treasurer's report was read by Colleen Boyd. Shirley Lowell of the Nominating Committee presented a slate of officers which will be voted on at the January meeting.

Muriel Faudi of the Sunshine Committee reported she had sent 20 birthday cards, one anniversary card, one sympathy card and several get well cards. Jane Hosterman reminded everyone to return the surveys so she can get ideas for trips and programs.

Dave Preble of Preb's Pharmacy spoke on changes at the pharmacy. The state requires a pharmacist be on duty when medicine is picked up. He also gave some tips on taking medicines, always with a full glass of water, also keep medicines out of children's reach, read directions carefully and store in a cool place. Always throw away old medicine.

The program consisted of musical selections by Joan and Rudy Royer and Don Chase. Maxine Wright played the piano and Jane Hosterman and Camilla Everett sang several old-time songs. Muriel Faudi told two humorous stories.

November birthdays are: Ernest Angevine, Oscar Annis, Lawrence Bailey, Kathleen Bean, Richard Carter, Annie Crockett, Robert Davis, Janis Hill, Maurice Lescault, Doris Parent, Eleanor Pugliese, Betty Robertson, Ruby Rolfe, Eva Schools, Henrietta Taft, Ethel Ward.

The Christmas Party is Dec. 10 at the Bethel Inn. Dinner will be served at 5:30 p.m. Reservations are not required. Members pay $6, non members $9. Bring a gift to exchange.

NORTH COUNTRY AUDUBON

The North Country Chapter of the Audubon Society of New Hampshire will hold its monthly meeting and program on Friday, Nov. 21, at 7 p.m. at the New Hampshire Community Technical College, 202 Riverside Drive in Berlin, N.H.

The Chapter invites all interested people to come and enjoy a slide show by Dot Skeels of Lancaster, N.H., who has captured many beautiful birds with her camera lens. The program is free and refreshments will be served.

For more information, call 603-752-1924 or 603-449-1376.

On Sunday, Nov. 23, the Chapter will host a field trip.

Meet at 8 a.m. at the New Hampshire Community Technical College parking lot to carpool, then head north along the Androscoggin in search of winter birds. Bring binoculars and dress warmly. The chapter encourages beginners as well as the seasoned birders to come along. For more information, call 603-752-1924.

From the

Greenstock Snowsports

Greenstock Snowsports Snowmobile Club would like to take this opportunity to give thanks to the landowners that allow us to cross their property. Snowmobiling in this area would not exist without the generosity of these people. We want them to know how much we appreciate their contribution to our growing sport. Greenstock cannot thank you enough.

We would also like to remind the people that use these trails of the importance of staying on designated areas and obeying signs. Please consider all the work and time it takes to keep the trail system going. Do your part and join your local club so we can all keep snowmobiling safe and fun for everyone.

To those of you in the market for a superior quality Christmas tree, Greenstock Snowsports will be starting its annual sale Dec. 7, weather permitting. The weekends of Dec. 13-14, Dec. 20 and thereafter, the Christmas trees will be available at Lowell's Saw Shop, the Big Apple turnout on Route 2, and the Deer Crossing Farm Stand on Route 26. For more information, contact Otis at 875-5084 or Nancy at 665-2236.

To those interested in joining Greenstock Snowsports Snowmobile Club, meetings are held the first Sunday of every month at 8 a.m. at the Greefwood Town Office. Next meeting will be held Dec. 7.

From the

Mundt-Allen Post

On Saturday, Nov. 8, members of Mundt-Allen Post assisted Post Auxiliary members in putting on a Hunters Breakfast to raise funds for the Auxiliary. Cooks Edleen Winslow, Mona Grover, and Arlene Bean put on their usual "bountiful repast," providing customers with omelets, biscuits with sausage and gravy, pancakes and bacon from shortly after 5 a.m. till 9 a.m. There were many compliments, and no complaints, on the hearty fare from the 44 customers served. The Auxiliary plans to do it again sometime late next spring.

On Veterans' Day, Post 81 commander, Richard Grover was invited to speak about the Bethel Rotary breakfast. His topic, "what makes a veteran special," was well received and prompted several questions about how to better inform today's youth about veterans and what they experienced in their service to their country.

On Veterans' Day evening the post held its regular monthly meeting of the general membership. The evening featured a potluck supper, during which members passed "the hat" and collected $85 to assist a local family in need of financial assistance, due to a recent family tragedy. After the meal, Mona Grover read an article from the "North Country News," entitled, "The Origin of Veterans' Day." Then Legion members, headed by Sonny Bean, performed a special flag-folding ceremony while Sylvia Clanton recited the meaning of each fold, as found in the "US Flag Folding Ceremony" in a recent issue of "The Family Tree" newspaper.

The evening's highlight was provided by special guests Joe and Peg Bernhart, who described their summer trip to Alaska with Milt and Eleanor Inman. Joe began with a moving recitation of the poem, "In Flanders Fields," in honor of Veterans Day. Then they showed slides, pictures and various fishing paraphernalia, giving background or history behind each item. As usual, Joe's "down home" humor made the whole evening memorable.

Prayer

PRAYER OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never known to fail). Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me here you are my Mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this prayer in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. Grateful thanks. EK.
